Preliminary Examination in Modern Languages

Brief note about nature of change: Deletion of unnecessary text

Location of change: https://examregs.admin.ox.ac.uk/Regulation?code=peinmodelang

Effective date
Correction for students starting Prelims in MT19

Detail of change
Amend citation reference 1.3 as follows (text for deletion crossed through):

1.31. The languages which may be offered shall be Latin and Greek and those languages which may be offered in the Final Honour School of Modern Languages.1 Candidates who offer both Latin and Ancient Greek shall be deemed to be offering one ancient language. Candidates for whom it is appropriate shall pass at the end of their first year of study the examination in Greek or Latin prescribed for first-year candidates in Course II of Honour Moderations in Classics and English, before proceeding to offer papers in the Preliminary Examination for Modern Languages in accordance with the following regulations in their second year of study.

Explanatory Notes
An error was spotted (line 6 of text should read ‘Course II of the Preliminary Examination in Classics and English’). In addressing this error, it was realised that the whole sentence could in fact be dispensed with, as this information is already given correctly and at a more logical place later in the entry (citation reference 1.45).
