Congregation

15 May

¶ Members of Congregation are reminded that any two members may, not later than noon on 7 May, give notice in writing to the Registrar that they intend to oppose or amend any of the resolutions below (see the note on the conduct of business in Congregation below). If no such notice has been given, and unless Council has declared otherwise or the meeting has been adjourned, the resolutions shall be declared carried and the meeting may be cancelled.

(1) Resolution regarding Council's self-review 2018

The following text has been received from the signatories to the resolution.

'1. We welcome Council's implementation of Congregation's March 6th vote on resolution 5¹, and its decision in light of that meeting, to reverse its previous response, informing UUK of its reversal, along with Council's subsequent acceptance of resolution 5 as unopposed.

We note Council's response to the governance and decision-making concerns expressed in the document sent to all Congregation members on 6 March, at its subsequent meeting of 7 March. In light of Congregation's concerns, Council has made two recommendations: 1) to expand the Pensions Working Group to "include members of the USS scheme and younger members of the University who are particularly affected by the proposed changes," and 2) to "hold a discussion in Congregation on April 24". These suggestions were made at its regular March 14 meeting, sent to Congregation members by email, and were also published in the Gazette of March 22, with the proposed meeting or discussion now on the Congregation website.

2. We affirm the primacy of shared governance between Congregation and Council, noting that: "Council has stewardship, under Congregation, of the University's affairs and ensures that suitable processes are in place for the management of the University's business," and, as the North report states: "Congregation is the supreme governing body of the University, consisting of all Oxford academic staff, and more senior academic related staff".

In the document explaining the rationale for resolutions 4 and 5 sent to Congregation members on 6 March, the resolutions' conveners underlined several issues that emphasised an increasing gulf that has grown between Congregation and Council, one that clearly led to the breakdown of governance and decision-making within Council's committee structure, and within Council itself. We believe that this lay behind Council's decision taken on pensions, and which necessitated an immediate and urgent intervention by Congregation².

Congregation members have articulated these particular concerns over many years, most recently in the resignation document of Congregation-elected members afforded to the Prevent Steering Group, published in the Flysheet of the Gazette of 25 January 2018, which underlined a chronic breakdown of decision-making and delegation of powers, and a lack of accountability within the University administrative structure³.

3. Council has itself recognised these same challenges, most recently in its last self-review (Review of the effectiveness of Oxford University Council of December 2015. C(16)04⁴), noting: "it is encouraging that there are a number of issues on which there appears to be widespread agreement about the need for change. But it is noteworthy that many of these are not new. Although some have been addressed in the past, change has not been sustained".

We note a number of findings are shared by many members of Congregation: "A number of people talked about the asymmetry (of knowledge) which exists between members of Council who are in the University administration and the elected members"; and, “All too often, so-called ‘strategic’ issues come to Council ‘wrapped in a ribbon’. They tend to be pre-cooked, having gone through several Committees on their way to Council. This means that some members may have seen the same paper half a dozen times, while others will never have seen it before. The resulting discussions are asymmetric and it is difficult to challenge the proposals. Council should be brought in at a much earlier stage in the process when there are genuine options on the table so that there can be real exploration of the issues” (p4); “there is a general feeling that Council does not debate issues in the way it should. As noted above, it comes to issues too late. And there is a cultural issue here. ‘Oxford finds it difficult to take robust decisions’. Council is seen as ‘debate averse’. Difficult, controversial issues are rarely addressed openly in that forum” (p6).

In spite of reforms introduced by Council in 2017 to address this specific problem (for instance by changing seating arrangements), the marked absence of governance was palpable on 6 March 2018, at the 8th week Congregation of Hilary term⁵.

Equally, we agree with the 2015 review that “external members rarely have direct experience of the higher education sector... and that they “would be more effective with a deeper understanding of how higher education worked”; along with the comment on how the processes and roles of elected members to Council remain obscure to them, as well as with concerns of how Committees functioned in relation to Council, with “caution and lack of clear accountability”; that Committee’s limits of delegation were not reviewed; finally, how conflict of interest was both understood and practiced remained unclear (p5, 6, 7).

Some of the Perkins Review’s key recommendations might be broadly

⁵Council minutes of 15 February, 2016, (C(16) 04) “The papers coming to Council need to be shorter and to identify more clearly the key issues for Council... The routine attendance of officers at Council’s meetings might be reduced, particularly if more matters were delegated to committees and their chairs” www.council.ox.ac.uk/sites/default/files/15.02.16%20Council%20Web%20minutes_0.pdf
www.council.ox.ac.uk/system/files/%28C%2816%29lxxx-lxxxviii%29_0.pdf

shared by Congregation members, as 3(c), to review the terms of reference across the key Council Committees “in a ‘gathered field’ against a common set of principles”; 3(e)(v) terms of reference for Nominations Committee, and how to “complement or broaden the diversity of the input” of External Members; 3(f) to seek measures to engage Congregation more effectively “early in discussion”, rather than after decisions have been made (p1–2).

However, some of its assumptions will not be shared by the majority of Congregation members, in particular the review’s misconception that Council is the governing body of the University: “it is unusual and, arguably, difficult for the Vice Chancellor both to run the University and to chair its governing body” (p6). Or that Congregation is the locus of the problem: “Relations with Congregation... Many people raised this saying that the Council cannot effect change without taking Congregation with it. Fear of Congregation’s reaction to change has acted as a brake. Many people thought this could and should be mitigated by much more open dialogue both in writing and through discussions with Congregation, engaging people before views became entrenched”(p8).

4. In order to restore the balance of governance to academic hands, and the workings of Council and Congregation to their proper function; to restore a relationship of trust and accountability between them, better reflecting the spirit of the current statutes and regulations, and the aims and purposes of the University:

Congregation instructs five members of Congregation be elected at its 8th week Congregation on 12 June, to be afforded to serve on the next review, with candidates’ nominations published in the Gazette of 5th week (issue of 24 May).

That this review is executed via the creation of a temporary working party under Statute VI, 24: “Council may set up such other standing or temporary committees as it may from time to time think fit.”

That these elected members of Congregation be afforded to the review working party of Council in order to carry out, with Council, its regular self-review of both “operations and effectiveness”, routinely scheduled for 2018, as specified under Regulation 12, Council Regulations 13 of 2002: “Council shall carry out a self-review of its operations and effectiveness at least every three years”.

That the working party be chaired by not more than three Council members, who remain guided by the criteria set out below.

5. That this working party, comprised of the afforded five elected Congregation members and three members of Council, will be informed and guided by the concerns expressed by Congregation on transparency, communication, and governance in the above referenced documents, by pertinent findings and recommendations established through the Council’s 2015 Review, and with the support of the VC, the Registrar, Council members, Council committees, or any external member requested to join and/or facilitate their work.

6. The 2018 review working party will have access to all relevant documents and reports, and to the support and infrastructure that reflects Council’s goodwill, and to receive proper remuneration for this task. The review is to be carried out over the summer of 2018; they will bring this review to Council, and to Congregation, in early MT 2018.

7. The five members of Congregation elected for this purpose are delegated to carry out Congregation’s wishes and ensure the interests of essential if underrepresented constituencies of the University:

(1) A member of Congregation who will reflect the interests of those on College-only contracts.

(2) A member of Congregation who will reflect the interests of those on temporary contracts.

(3) A member of Congregation who will reflect the interests of those on part-time contracts.

(4) A member of Congregation who will reflect the interests of members of the University who are directly affected by the University’s decisions; students and issue of student fees.

(5) A member of Congregation who will reflect the interests of their university colleagues who are neither members of Congregation, nor the University, but are directly impacted by our decisions nationally.

8. The five members of Congregation will be elected through an open process which allows those respective constituencies within the University to discuss key concerns with Congregation members before the election, in the aim of supporting those who can best reflect their interests. Council is to facilitate this process through the resources of the Secretariat, to be completed by the meeting of Congregation of 8th week TT, 2018.

The elected members will possess a dual function. The first is to represent the interests of a particular constituency listed above during the review process, availing themselves of its support, experience, and expertise. The second is to represent the general interest of the University and its members overall, taking up Congregation's mandate, and reversing the recent drift to a managerial top-down culture, while strengthening Oxford's centuries-old tradition of self-governance.¹

Council's response

Council considered this resolution at its meeting on 23 April in the context of its own decision to conduct a self-review, a focus of which it is intended will be on the relationship between Council and Congregation. The paper considered and accepted by Council is set out below. Eleven members of Council are currently elected by Congregation and all members of Council are committed to effective engagement with all members of Congregation. Council believes that engagement should extend beyond the five categories listed in the resolution. For this and other reasons Council considers the resolution to be unacceptable to it and therefore a debate will be held at the meeting of Congregation on 15 May.

COUNCIL

Council's self-review of effectiveness, 2018/19

Ref COU/1

(a) Summary

At a recent meeting of Council (12/3/18) it was agreed that the effectiveness of Council (and in particular the relationship between Council and Congregation) should be a topic for consideration at the next away day in September.

Council is also required to undertake a self-review of its operations and effectiveness at least every three years and to agree the procedure immediately prior to the review¹. Council's last self-review took place in 2015 and the next review is currently scheduled to start in MT 18. It is proposed that the work of the self-review should commence sooner to inform the Council Away Day discussion and that it should include a focus on the relationship between Council and the wider University in general and Congregation in particular.

In order to make best use of the away day in September it is proposed that work on the self-review commence over the summer vacation. It will be important to have input from all members of Council and to ensure that a process is adopted which enables members of Congregation, and in particular those in demographic groups who are not currently represented on Council and whose views are not therefore always sufficiently heard, to contribute to the review process.

(b) Action required by Council

Council is asked to:

- i. agree to conduct a self-review exercise that includes a focus on the relationship between Council and the wider University, and in particular with Congregation;
- ii. agree that the review take active steps to engage with members of Congregation by way of preparation for the Away Day, including gaining input from currently under-represented groups whose views can then be reflected back to Council; and
- iii. endorse that a member or members of Council should lead and facilitate the review.

(c) Key issues

1. Outcomes of Council's self-review of effectiveness held in 2015

The report of the last self-review was presented in Council paper C(16)04², an update on actions provided in C(16)101³, and recommendations relating to committees and decision making in C(16)117⁴.

Recommendation of self-review 2015	Actions taken
Structuring Council agendas so that there is adequate time to discuss genuinely strategic issues.	Strategic issues are put on the earlier part of the agenda. Divisional reports are now given at meetings spread throughout the year. The greater delegation of operational matters to Council's main committees and greater use of SharePoint for reports from those committees (see also below) has also reduced pressure on Council's agenda.
Rethink the timing and content of the annual Away Day.	The last two Away Days were structured to allow discussion on strategically important topics rather than to hear reports from the Divisions.
Review the Committees supporting Council, and their delegated authorities, including the actions which their Chairs are empowered to take; starting with the way in which existing delegations are exercised in practice.	A review was conducted of the terms of reference of the Council's main committees in a 'gathered field' against a common set of principles in order to ensure that appropriate and consistent levels of delegation are in place to committees, subcommittees and chairs of these committees. The review reported in October 2016 and took effect on 1 January 2017. This resulted in <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • a reduction both in the number of committees and in the number reporting directly to Council; • the introduction of a standard form of Standing Orders for Council's main committees, providing in particular a clear statement of the actions delegated to their chairs; • revised general regulations for all committees and for all committees reporting directly to Council or one of its main committees and revised regulations for each of Council's main committees; • a revised template for Council papers to reduce the volume of detail provided direct to Council, the background being made available through papers and minutes on committee SharePoint sites; and • annual rather than more frequent summary reports to Council from its main committees, regular reporting to be through Council members' access to the SharePoint sites of the main committees, and the annual reports to focus on key issues and to be in a form capable of publication to Congregation on Council's website.
Change the way papers are written and presented, and discussions structured to promote honest debate.	Papers are structured now to be shorter and to link to the papers that have been discussed by other committees before the issue has come to Council. Below the line papers are no longer circulated in paper form and have been moved to SharePoint. A decision has also been made to move some of the longer supporting papers on above the line items to SharePoint so that the volume of paper for each meeting has been reduced substantially.
Improve the dynamics of Council.	The seating arrangements have been changed so that only Council members now sit around the Council table. Dinners for Council members after the meeting of Council are held at the Vice-Chancellor's residence.
Promote the 'collective' nature of Council's responsibilities over the 'hats' which individual members wear.	Council members are reminded at the beginning of the year of their duties as Trustees and their responsibility to the institution, rather than the community they may feel they represent.
Transforming the communications with the rest of the University.	Elected members of Council have agreed to be point of contact for Congregation members with areas of responsibility for the committees on which they sit ⁵ .

2. Proposed parameters for Council's self-review of effectiveness

The parameters of the proposed review are as follows.

Ground to be covered

The effectiveness of Council as currently constituted, including the following issues.

- The change in the University's demographic makeup in the last 15 or so years and how Council's structure might adapt to that?

- Is Council getting the balance right between its input to strategic and policy questions on the one hand and its fiduciary duties on the other?
- How might engagement with Congregation be improved?
- Is Council effectively briefed on the business its committees are considering?

Method

Those Council members leading the review are asked to provide an outline approach for discussion at the next Council meeting.

Report

A written report setting the findings would be presented to Council at its away day meeting on 21 September.

Further information is available from the Registrar (tel: (01865) 270232, email: ewan.mckendrick@admin.ox.ac.uk).

Notices

(2) Voting on Resolution approving the conferment of Honorary Degrees

(i) That the conferment of the Degree of Master of Arts, honoris causa, upon Neville Baker be approved.

(ii) That the conferment of the Degree of Master of Arts, honoris causa, upon David O'Connor be approved.

(iii) That the conferment of the Degree of Master of Arts, honoris causa, upon Walter Sawyer be approved.

Neville Baker retired from the post of Electronics Workshop Deputy Supervisor in September 2017 after nearly 45 years' service in the Department of Chemistry. An exceptional electronic engineer, he made a very real contribution to many scientific advances in the department through his talent and inventive approach to the design and fabrication of high-specification bespoke instrumentation.

David O'Connor retired in August 2017 after 47 years' service to the University. He arrived as a teenage technical apprentice, rising through the ranks to become Chief Technician in the University Laboratory of Physiology, and then Department of Physiology, Anatomy and Genetics. He served under three Waynflete Professors, two Dr Lee's Professors and seven heads of department. His technical leadership played a critical role in facilitating the teaching and research excellence that the University delivers in these disciplines.

Walter Sawyer retired in the summer of 2017 from the post of Superintendent of the University Parks after 26 years' service. Through his leadership, the Parks department developed into a service which landscapes and maintains not only the University Parks, but also the green spaces within the University's wider estate and within numerous colleges. He encouraged the use and enjoyment of the Parks by members of the University, charities and the general public, and was always willing to share his expertise and knowledge.

If the resolutions are approved, the degrees will be conferred at degree ceremonies this term.
